

Dear colleagues, friends and supporters

It would be a great honour to have you join me at the public defence of my PhD dissertation entitled:

Embodied Care Pathways: Feminist Restorative Therapeutic Approaches for Adult Women Survivors of Childhood Sexual Abuse in Marginalised Contexts.

This research explores integrative trauma-informed care pathways developed with women survivors in marginalised communities on the Cape Flats in South Africa. The work brings together feminist, community-centred and embodied approaches to trauma recovery, with the aim of contributing to more culturally responsive therapeutic care.

Your presence would mean a great deal as I reach this important milestone in my academic journey. I warmly invite you to attend the public defence and to celebrate this moment together.

More information about the research is included in the attached leaflet.

With gratitude
Leona Morgan
